

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Dr. Jean-François Lanctôt, MD CCFP (EM) works in the Emergency Department at Charles-LeMoyne Hospital and in the Intensive Care Unit at Verdun Hospital in Montréal, Québec, Canada. He is Adjunct Professor at McGill University, and Professor of Clinical Teaching at Université de Sherbrooke. Dr. Lanctôt is also co-director and founder of the course ‘Echo Guided Life Support’, and co-creator of the Apple mobile device application ‘Shock Echo’.

Dr. Maxime Valois, MD CCFP (EM) works in the Emergency Department at Charles-LeMoyne Hospital and in the Intensive Care Unit at Verdun Hospital in Montréal, Québec, Canada. He is Adjunct Professor at McGill University and Université de Montréal, and Associate Professor at Université de Sherbrooke. Dr. Valois is co-director and founder of the course ‘Echo Guided Life Support’, and co-creator of the Apple mobile device application ‘Shock Echo’.

Dr. Martin Loranger, MD CCFP (EM) works in the Emergency Department at Charles-LeMoyne Hospital in Montréal, Québec, Canada. He is Associate Professor at Université de Sherbrooke.

Dr. Stéphane Rhein, MD CCFP (EM) works in the Emergency Department at Charles-LeMoyne Hospital in Montréal, Québec, Canada. He is Associate Professor at Université de Sherbrooke.